

Creating Child friendly, Safe Schools

– Another Milestone in South Sudan!

✚ DMI South Sudan continues to focus on ensuring a safe, protective and child friendly school environment for the children in every DMI school. The latest testimony to our continued efforts is the new school building in Luri village, Juba.

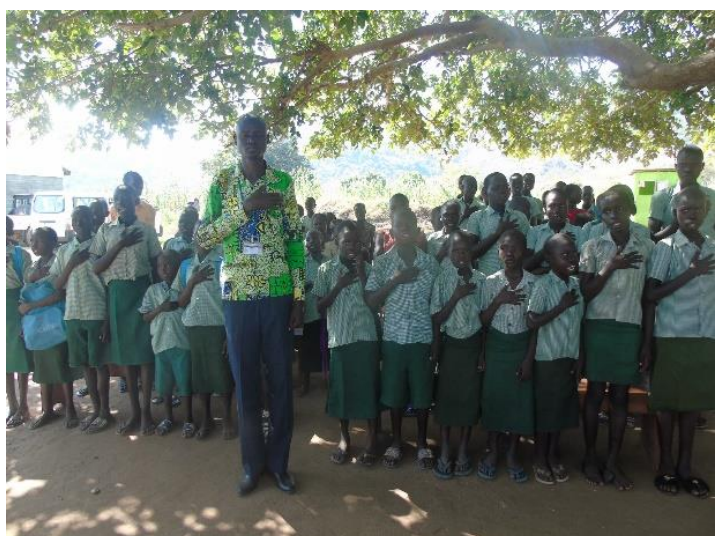

✚ His Excellency Dr. S. D. Moorthy, the Indian ambassador for South Sudan, inaugurated the new DMI school building in Luri village, Juba, South Sudan on 14th November 2018.

✚ His Excellency, the ambassador admired the work carried out by DMI sisters and expressed his happiness to witness the people's active participation in the program. He presented books and stationaries and offered to support the school with benches. He also declared that the Indian embassy would build a hospital in Juba before his tenure ends.

✚ Fr. Samuel Abe, representative from the Archdiocese of Juba congratulated the sisters for their work and assured the diocese's support for furniture to the school and mid-day meals for children.

✚ The Chief of the area acknowledged DMI's contribution to the surrounding communities in creating access to Education for their children and offered his full support for the success of the initiatives taken by DMI. He also highlighted the need to accommodate more children and qualified teachers in the nursery school.

✚ The event was blessed by Rev. Fr. Samuel Abe, Secretary General of Archdiocese of Juba and solemnised by the presence of the Indian embassy staff, Chief of the village, community leaders, women, men and students of Holy Cross Nursery and Primary schools, Luri.
